Box No. V	Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement
1. Statement
Novelty (N)	Claims	1-8	YES
	Claims		NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims	1-8	YES
	Claims		NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims	1-8	YES
	Claims		NO
2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)
This report makes reference to the following documents:
D1: GB-A-2 222 657 (TOPEXPRESS LTD), 14 March 1990 (1990-03-14)
D2: EP-A-756 103 (&amp; DE-C-195 27 514, already mentioned in the application)
D3: DE-A-199 25 982
Documents D2 and D3 were not cited in the international search report.
1. Document D1, which is considered to represent the closest prior art, discloses (see figure 3; page 9, paragraph 2; the references in parentheses are to that document):
an intermediate body for reducing mechanical vibrations and comprising a base connection element (20), a load connection element (18, 16) and at least one support element (20),
(a) at least one first energy converter system (22) extending between at least one contact point located on the base connection element and at least one contact point located on the load connection element;

(b) at least one second energy converter system (26) extending between at least one contact point located on the support element and at least one contact point located on the load connection element;

(c) the base connection element being joined to the at least one support element by at least one pretensioning device (30) in such a way that a prestress [which can also be equal to zero] can be applied by the pretensioning device to the first and second energy converter systems; and

(d) the load connection element comprising a portion (16) which lies in a gap between the base connection element and the support element and a portion (18) which lies outside the gap between the base connection element and the support element.

The subject matter of claim 1 differs therefrom in that the pretensioning device is elastic and designed as a tube that encloses the actuator systems (c1).

The subject matter of claim 1 is thus novel (PCT Article 33(2)).

2. The present invention can therefore be considered to address the problem of providing a pretensioning device which transmits less undesirable disrupting energy and is stabilised against shearing forces, and at the same time protects the actuator system from environmental influences.

Box No. V

Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability;
citations and explanations supporting such statement

The solution to this problem, as proposed in claim 1 of the present application, involves an inventive step (PCT Article 33(3)) because, although unidirectional pretensioning devices are known from D2, the prior art does not contain any indication of its combination with the subject matter of D1.

3. Claims 2-8 are dependent on claim 1 and thus also meet the PCT novelty and inventive step requirements.

Box No. VIII Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:

Contrary to PCT Rule 5.1(a)(iii), the description is not in line with the claims.

The embodiments described on pages 24 and 26 and represented in figures 9 and 10 do not fall under the present claims. This contradiction between the claims and the description raises doubts as to the subject matter for which protection is sought, and for this reason the claims are unclear (PCT Article 6).

Contrary to PCT Rule 5.1(a)(ii), the description does not cite document D1 or indicate the relevant prior art disclosed therein.
